Moncton shooting. Friends speak fondly of man who apparently gave in to obsession

Two contrasting accounts are emerging of the young man suspected of killing three Mounties and injuring two others in a heavily armed rampage Wednesday night.

One is the intelligent, laid-back, home-schooled guitar enthusiast known to friends who grew up alongside 24-year-old Justin Bourque in suburban Moncton.

The other is a radical remake that occurred earlier this year: a man obsessed with gun rights, enraged by police and fixated on global conflicts happening half a world away.

"It was almost like a complete 180 for him," said friend and former workmate Trever Finck. "There was a pretty stark difference."

The new Bourque — the one dressed head-to-toe in army fatigues and toting two high-powered guns — became the subject of an intense police manhunt.

Those who know Bourque are not surprised that he evaded his hunters so long.

One acquaintance who spoke on condition of anonymity said Bourque has "lots of tactical knowledge" and "should be considered military-trained."

A spokesperson for the Department of National Defence has said that Bourque was never a member of the Canadian military.

Bourque has long had an enthusiasm for guns, however, and even before Wednesday's shooting was often seen in military fatigues.

The acquaintance, who last saw Bourque in person two years ago, said: "I know he went into the woods to shoot things, but I'm assuming it (was) targets like cans."

He, like others, is shocked by what Bourque has allegedly done. Up until now, he had left a friendly impression.

"Nobody expected this."

But as events unfolded after supper hour in suburban Moncton, the situation became more clear.

"When they started giving the description (of the shooter), he was the only person I could think of that would dress like that," Finck said.

It wasn't beyond belief that Bourque might do something out of character given his odd behaviour in recent months.

Finck said Bourque had two guns stored in the home he shared with his parents and siblings. According to Finck, Bourque owned a Chinese M-14 rifle and a shotgun, the latter purchased in the last few months.

Just before that, in March, Bourque was looking for friends to move in with. He ended up in a trailer park.

Finck and other friends were not aware of any mental-health problems, despite Bourque's apparent obsession with guns and police. Rather, they say Bourque spoke openly of having moved from marijuana to drugs like heroin.

The RCMP say Bourque has no criminal record.

Premier Wall adds three new faces during cabinet shuffle

'Agenda hasn't changed'. New faces won't hold back promises kept by the party, he says

Premier Brad Wall has shaken up his cabinet, keeping only eight of its members in their same portfolios.

Health Minister Dustin Duncan, Economy Minister Bill Boyd and Finance Minister and Deputy Premier Ken Krawetz, who recently announced he won't run in the next Saskatchewan general election in 2016, are among those who retained their posts in the shuffle on Thursday.

"The people have changed ... but the agenda hasn't changed," Wall said after the ministers were sworn in at Government House in Regina.

"We have promises we made ... and we're going to continue to keep those."

Don McMorris has moved from the highways and infrastructure portfolio to responsibility for the Saskatchewan Liquor and Gaming Authority and the Lean initiative.

Four other ministers — Kevin Doherty, Donna Harpauer, Nancy Heppner and Tim McMillan — have also changed portfolios.

The switches, however, show that the Saskatchewan Party lacks reliable and capable caucus members, according to NDP Leader Cam Broten.

"The fact that Mr. Wall had to keep certain ministers around that have caused problems and where there have been problems in their ministries ... indicates a lack of bench strength," Broten charged, zeroing in on health and education initiatives that have been under fire.

Broten added that the cabinet fails to adequately represent women and the cities of Moose Jaw, Prince Albert and Yorkton.

June Draude and Rob Norris, who held the social services and advanced education posts, respectively, have been removed from the cabinet. Both recently confirmed they won't run for re-election once their current terms are over.

Ken Cheveldayoff, meanwhile, has been shifted from the environment portfolio to government house leader.

MLAs Jennifer Campeau, Mark Docherty and Scott Moe have been moved from the backbenches to the cabinet.

Including the premier, the cabinet continues to have 18 members — the size it's been since Wall's Saskatchewan Party took power in 2007.

Scott Moe, MLA for Rosthern-Shellbrook, right, is sworn in as Saskatchewan's environment minister on Thursday at Government House in Regina. Saskatchewan mourns dead N.B. RCMP officers

Saskatchewanians are joining the residents of Moncton, N.B. as they mourn three RCMP officers shot and killed in a tragedy that has rattled the country.

A gunman fired at the Mounties in Moncton on Wednesday evening in an ambush, killing three and injuring two others. Police continued on Thursday to search for the shooter.

"We proclaim ourselves as the home of the Mounties ... and we train every single Mountie in F Division, so there's a special connection between Saskatchewan people and the Mounties all over this country," Premier Brad Wall said on Thursday.

All Saskatchewan government buildings lowered their flags to half-mast on Thursday in honour of the fallen officers.

"Right now we have a united front, but it's just too soon in the events and it wouldn't be appropriate for us to comment," said RCMP F Division spokeswoman Sgt. Pharanae Jaques.

A chapel at the RCMP Depot Division training academy in Regina has been open since Wednesday night. A collection box has been set up there to raise funds for the families of the officers who were killed.

The shooting was the deadliest attack on RCMP since 2005, when a gunman fatally shot four officers in the area of Mayerthorpe, Alta.

"It's hard for everybody in the country, and I can't even imagine what it's like for people in New Brunswick," Wall said, "but we feel it very much here in Saskatchewan, so we're offering our thoughts and prayers to the families of the fallen and those who are injured."

Province supports immigrant couple's adoption in Pakistan

'God accepted our prayer.' A Saskatoon couple sought to adopt a child from Pakistan and have since faced many legal challenges

JACOB MORGAN
Metro in Saskatoon

A legal battle that has kept a Saskatchewan family separated across continents could be nearing its end.

Social Services Minister June Draude stood alongside Ashfaq Afridi and lawyer Haidah Amirzadeh in Saskatoon on Thursday to announce that the provincial government is certain that Ashfaq's three-year-old adopted son, Ajjab, will be able to move from Pakistan to Saskatchewan.

"We have received additional information that allows us to sign the no-objection letter," Draude said at a provincial cabinet office.

"The information will now go to the federal government."

She added that she hopes to see the boy home within a few weeks.

Amirzadeh, who has represented the Afridis on a pro-bono basis, said Ashfaq's wife Waheeda went to Pakistan for Ajjab when he was born and was overjoyed to hear the news.

"I have spoken to her for the past 2 1/2 years and she has cried many, many times," said Amirzadeh.

"But today her cry was a good cry."

One hurdle in the case, Amirzadeh said, was a perceived incompatibility between adoption procedures in Canada and an Islamic notion of guardianship in Pakistan.

To secure the required letter of non-objection supporting Ajjab's bid to Ottawa for permanent residency, Amirzadeh said she had to provide a Pakistani expert "to clarify that the concept is the same."

Ashfaq and Waheeda are Canadian citizens. They could not have children of their own and sought to adopt Ajjab following his birth in 2010 — before Canada halted adoptions from Pakistan last July — from Waheeda's sister.

"She couldn't afford to keep (her) seventh child," Ashfaq explained. "For that reason, we stepped in."

He has stayed in Canada to work during the ordeal and met his son for the first time in October on a trip to Turkey, where Waheeda and Ajjab had travelled to for respite from turmoil in the Pakistani city of Peshawar.

"God accepted our prayer," Ashfaq said.

All smiles

"I was telling my son that he's going to come one day."

Ashfaq Afridi has lived in Canada for nearly 28 years, but has struggled with his wife to bring their adopted three-year-old son Ajjab to Saskatchewan from Pakistan. He was all smiles on Thursday as the province signed a letter of non-objection supporting the Afridis' cause. JACOB MORGAN/METRO IN SASKATOON

City hall seeks public feedback on plan to build pond for Queen St. Park redevelopment

City hall is soliciting feedback from south-end residents on development plans for Queen Street Park, which is slated to lose its baseball diamonds and basketball courts to allow for construction of a storm-water detention pond.

The city hosted an open house on Thursday night at the South Leisure Centre to see what the public wants in the park's redevelopment.

"We'd like to ... take advantage of that green space to help improve drainage in the area, and maybe come out of it with a nicer space," said Pat Wilson, director of waterworks services with the City of Regina.

He added that the plan is to include at least one baseball diamond in the park's new design.

"The intention is to have better facilities, when we do get those big downpours ... for water to go."

A playground expansion or new basketball court are also potential features, according to the city.

The maximum approved budget for the project, Wilson said, comes in at $7.8 million.

Construction is expected to begin late this fall and could be completed by the end of the year.

The head of the area's community association, however, says Queen Street Park can't afford to lose any green space because it serves as a popular gathering area for the student population of Ethel Milleken School, located nearby.

"That school is absolutely full with portable (classrooms) on it," Stella Dechaine, co-president of the Albert Park Community Association, told Metro.

"It needs all the playground it can get."

Dechaine, however, said she supports the city's efforts to build the pond if it's necessary to improve drainage in the south end.

Transit offers summer promo for youth and students

Regina Transit is encouraging more students to take the bus this summer by offering a two-for-one discount on monthly passes.

From June 8 to 28, anyone purchasing a youth or post-secondary student monthly Transit pass will receive an additional 31 free days on their R-Card.

The deal provides significant savings to students who rely on Transit, Luanne Drake, vice-president of the University of Regina Students Union, said on Thursday as the offer was announced at the campus. Mayor Michael Fougere noted that Transit is focusing on getting more students onto buses.

"(With) other promotions, we've had 10 to 15 per cent increases," Fougere said. METRO

Boko Haram extremists reportedly massacre 200 Nigerian villagers

Military inaction?
A community leader said residents pleaded with local government to send soldiers

Boko Haram militants dressed as soldiers killed at least 200 civilians in three villages in northeastern Nigeria and the military failed to intervene even though it was warned that an attack was imminent, witnesses said on Thursday.

A community leader who witnessed the killings on Monday said residents of the Gwoza local government district in Borno state had pleaded for the military to send soldiers to protect the area after they heard that militants were about to attack, but help didn't arrive. The killings occurred in Danjara, Agapalwa and Antagara.

"We all thought they were the soldiers that we earlier reported to that the insurgents might attack us," said a community leader who escaped the massacre and fled to Maiduguri, Borno's state capital.

The militants arrived in Toyota Hilux pickup trucks commonly used by the military — and told the civilians they were soldiers "and we are here to protect you all," the same tactic used by the group when they kidnapped more than 300 girls from a school in the town of Chibok on April 15.

After people gathered in the centre on the orders of the militants, "they begin to shout 'Allahu Akbar, Allahu Akbar' on top of their voices, then they begin to fire at the people continuously for a very long time until all that gathered were all dead," said the witness, who did not want to be named.

Death toll mounts

Thousands have been killed in the five-year Boko Haram insurgency.

- More than 2,000 Nigerians have been killed so far this year.

The slaughter was confirmed by both Mohammed Ali Ndume, a senator representing Borno and whose hometown is Gwoza, and by a top security official in Maiduguri who insisted on anonymity because he isn't allowed to speak to the media.

It took a few days for word of the massacres to reach Maiduguri because travel on the roads is dangerous and phone connections are poor or nonexistent.

The community leader wasn't shot because "I was going round to inform people that the soldiers had come and they wanted to address us," he said. As people were fleeing, other gunmen lurked outside the villages on motorcycles and mowed them down, he said.

The villages attacked on Monday are in the Gwoza local government, a regional political centre whose emir was killed in a Boko Haram ambush last week. Emirs are religious and traditional rulers who have been targeted for speaking out against Boko Haram's extremism. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One dead. Student disarms lone gunman in Seattle campus shooting

A lone gunman armed with a shotgun opened fire Thursday in a building at a small Seattle university, killing one person before a student subdued him with pepper spray as he tried to reload, Seattle police said.

Police say a student building monitor at Seattle Pacific University disarmed the gunman and several other students jumped on top of him and pinned him down until police arrived.

A man in his 20s died at the hospital and a critically injured 20-year-old woman was taken to surgery, Harborview Medical Center spokeswoman Susan Gregg said.

A 24-year-old man and a 22-year-old man were in satisfactory condition. None of the victims was immediately identified.

‘Worst nightmare’ plays out in Moncton

RCMP shootings. Police from across Canada brought in to help track down 24-year-old suspected shooter Justin Bourque

Quoted

“Never in my darkest dreams did I ever think that we would be facing what we’re facing today in Moncton. Moncton has always been a special community. If this can happen in Moncton, it can happen anywhere.” Moncton Mayor George LeBlanc

A nerve-racking search for a heavily armed gunman continued Thursday in Moncton, nearly a full day after he allegedly shot three New Brunswick Mounties dead and injured two others in one of the worst mass shootings in the RCMP’s history.

The suspect, Justin Bourque, 24, was last spotted Thursday morning but he evaded capture after he went into a wooded area, the RCMP said.

“This is working through your worst nightmare,” Assistant Commissioner Roger Brown, the Mounties’ commanding officer in New Brunswick, told a news conference.

Brown appealed for public calm in a city that has been under a virtual siege since Wednesday evening.

“This is a very, very dangerous situation,” he said.

Officers were unable to confirm the identity of the suspect on two other occasions when he might have been sighted on Thursday, Supt. Marlene Snowman said.

Police including tactical officers began their manhunt for the shooter Wednesday at around 7:30 p.m. when they responded to a call about a man walking along a road with what was believed to be a gun.

After the call, shots were fired and officers called for backup, Snowman said.

Brown said police officers from across the country have been brought in to help arrest the suspect.

“The RCMP family is hurting,” he said. “Greater Moncton is hurting as is New Brunswick as is our country.”

Police urged people with any information on Bourque’s whereabouts to call 911. Residents in the area where police searched were urged to stay inside their homes and lock their doors.

Police also warned people to expect roadblocks and traffic disruptions. Schools and government offices were closed, buses were pulled off the roads and surgeries at the Moncton Hospital were cancelled.

Brown said the two wounded officers underwent surgery in hospital Thursday. Cpl. Chantal Farrah later said that one of those officers was released. The injuries suffered by the other officer were not considered life-threatening.

Brown said he met with the families of the officers who were shot earlier in the day.

“As you can all imagine, they’re hurting,” said Brown. “There’s actually no way to describe the level of hurt.”

The identities of the officers who were shot have not been released.

Will Njoku said, via Twitter, "I just want this to be over," as he and hundreds of residents waited for police to find the man suspected of having shot and killed three RCMP officers.

Njoku spoke with media outlets from his home in Moncton following the shooting Wednesday night, sharing his experience as helicopters flew overhead and police searched the neighbourhood for any sign of the gunman.

"I just want this to be over for all of us.… Worried for my neighbors," Njoku tweeted Wednesday.

Heavily armed RCMP officers searched through the night for Justin Bourque, 24, who is suspected of wounding two other Mounties.

Police asked residents in a large section of the city to remain indoors until the suspect was found.

Around 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Njoku said via Twitter he and his family had spent the night in their basement, then moved upstairs and locked themselves in a bathroom.

"Taking no chances," he tweeted.

A former Yarmouth County woman living in Moncton was also on lockdown, and said there will forever be a sense of "innocence lost" in the city her family calls home.

Audrey Vaughan, who lives in Moncton with her husband, Jim, and their son Jimmy told the Yarmouth Vanguard Thursday morning no one had gotten much sleep.

"There's just so many little patches of wooded areas and green space, and (Bourque) knows the area, he's from here. Any little noise and you're looking out the window," she said.

Vaughan said it's incredibly sad to think about the RCMP officers who died in the line of duty, and her heart "just broke" thinking of the families and fellow Mounties who had to continue the search.

Vaughan said Moncton is "just not going to look the same again."

"That's the hard part. He's taken away something from all of us," she said.

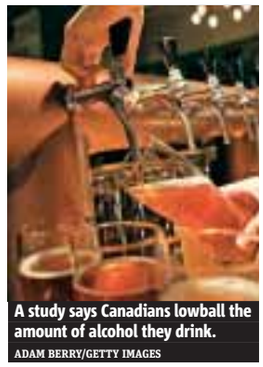
Study says booze consumption is under-reported

Up to 75% too low.
Study shows people reported about one-third of their real alcohol consumption

It turns out Canadians lowball the amount of alcohol they consume by up to 75 per cent, especially when it comes to wine.

A study by the University of Victoria's Centre for Addictions Research says surveys of alcohol consumption are crucial when it comes to estimating disease and injury caused by people's favourite recreational drug.

But the centre's director, Tim Stockwell, says it's easier for society to ignore the risks associated with alcohol consumption when policies are based on a gross underestimation of how much people actually drink.



A study says Canadians lowball the amount of alcohol they drink. ADAM BERRY/GETTY IMAGES

The study published in the journal Addiction includes three years of data from daily Health Canada phone surveys of 45,000 people across the country between 2008 and 2012.

Stockwell says Canadians were asked how many drinks they'd had over the last week, the last month, the last year and then the day before — a question that provided the most accurate amount based on memory.

He says the results showed that people reported only about one-third of their consumption when the amounts were compared to how much alcohol was actually sold every year — 8.2 litres of pure alcohol per person aged 15 and over.

New evidence on moon's birth

A new study strengthens the notion that our moon was created by a collision between Earth and a planet-sized object some 4.5 billion years ago.

German scientists studied moon rocks gathered by astronauts nearly a half-century ago in the Apollo 11, 12 and 16 missions. They analyzed various kinds of oxygen atoms and found the moon rocks have a different make-up than Earth rocks do. That fits with the idea that the moon would contain material from the object that struck Earth.

The results also suggest that the moon may be a 50-50 mix of material from this object and from Earth.

The study was published Thursday by the journal Science.

The information from the lunar rocks is the first direct evidence of a collision that formed our moon.

The new study bolsters a belief that has been held for some time. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harper and Obama oppose Putin sitdown

Cracks in united G7 front. Officials from the United Kingdom, France and Germany to discuss Ukraine crisis with Putin

Prime Minister Stephen Harper joined U.S. President Barack Obama in opposing the plans of some G7 leaders to meet Russian President Vladimir Putin this week, the Canadian Press has learned.

During two days of closed-door G7 leaders' talks in Brussels, Harper and Obama were firmly aligned against the plans of several fellow leaders to sit down with Putin, a source close to the talks said Thursday.

Harper has consistently urged other countries and Canadian businesses to actively isolate Putin on the world stage.

France invited Putin to Friday's commemoration in Normandy to mark the 70th anniversary of the D-Day invasion, which began the liberation of Europe from the Nazis.

Putin's imminent arrival has exposed cracks in an otherwise united G7 front that produced a public declaration denouncing his annexation of Crimea and provocations in eastern Ukraine.

British Prime Minister David Cameron, French President Francois Hollande and German Chancellor Angela Merkel are to meet Putin this week and engage him on the Ukraine crisis.

Defence deal between France and Russia a concern for Obama

President Barack Obama says he's expressed concern to France about its intentions to keep building warships for Russia at the same time that Europe and the U.S. are trying to isolate Russia over the crisis in Ukraine.

Obama was speaking at a news conference hours before he'll have dinner with French President Francois Hollande.

Obama said he recognizes the three-year-old deal is large and important for French jobs. But he says it would have been preferable for France to pause defence deals while Russia is violating international law and the sovereignty of its neighbours.

Obama said Hollande understands his position on the issue but that France has made a difference decision.

But he said that doesn't negate co-operation between France and the U.S. on sanctions against Russia.

Kawaii overload with debut of Pepper the robot

Will sell for $1,900 US. Japanese billionaire kicks the 'kawaii,' or cute culture, up a notch with humanoid robot

A cooing, gesturing humanoid on wheels that can decipher emotions has been unveiled in Japan by billionaire Masayoshi Son, who says robots should be tender and make people smile.

Son's mobile phone company Softbank said Thursday that the robot it has dubbed Pepper will go on sale in Japan in February for $1,900 US. Overseas sales plans are under consideration but undecided.

The machine, which has no legs but has gently gesticulating hands, appeared on a stage in a Tokyo suburb, cooing and humming. It dramatically touched hands with Son in a Genesis or E.T. moment.

Son, who told the crowd that his longtime dream was to go into the personal robot business, said Pepper has been programmed to read the emotions of people around it by recognizing expressions and voice tones.

"Our aim is to develop affectionate robots that can make people smile," he said.

Cuddly robots are not new in Japan, a nation dominated by "kawaii," or cute culture, but no companion robot has emerged a major market success yet.

Japanese electronics and entertainment company Sony Corp. discontinued the Aibo pet-dog robot in 2006, despite outcry from its fans. At that time, Sony had developed a child-shaped entertainment robot similar to Pepper but much smaller, capable of dances and other charming moves, which never became a commercial product.

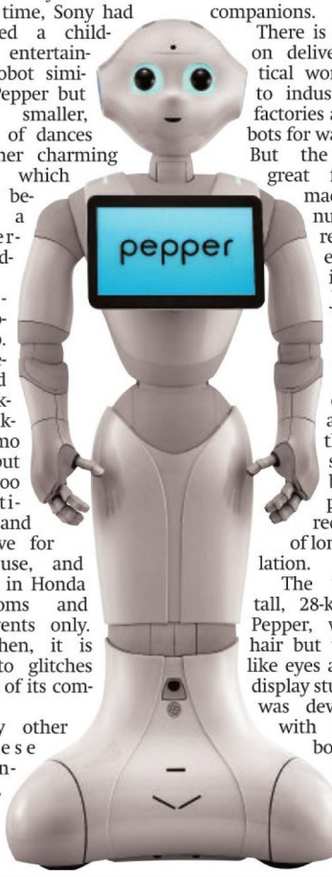
Honda Motor Co. has developed the walking, talking Asimo robot, but that is too sophisticated and expensive for home use, and appears in Honda showrooms and gala events only. Even then, it is prone to glitches because of its complexity.

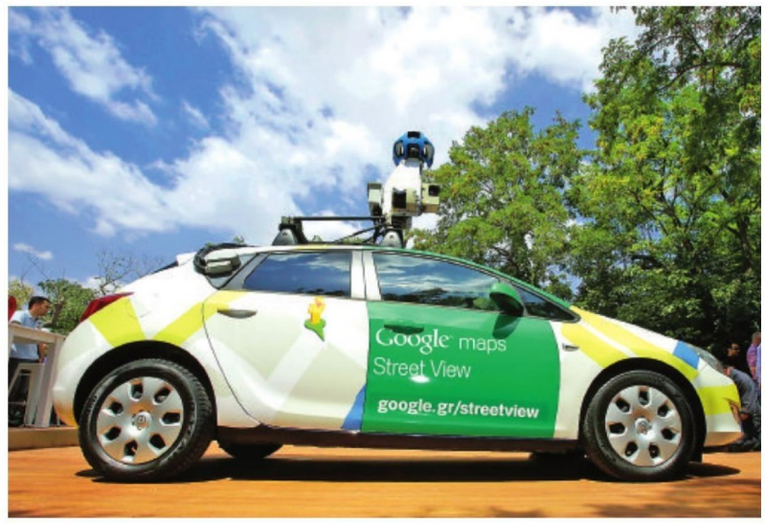
Many other Japanese companies, including Hitachi Ltd. and Toyota Motor Corp., not to mention universities and startups, have developed various robots, big and small, which entertain and serve as companions.

There is little emphasis on delivering on practical work, in contrast to industrial robots at factories and military robots for war.

But the potential is great for intelligent machines as the number of elderly requiring care is expected to soar in rapidly aging Japan in coming years. Robotic technology is already used to check on the elderly and monitor their health and safety, but robots might also play a role in reducing feelings of loneliness and isolation.

The 121-centimetre-tall, 28-kilogram white Pepper, which has no hair but two large doll-like eyes and a flat-panel display stuck on its chest, was developed jointly with Aldebaran Robotics, which produces autonomous humanoid robots. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS





Google Street View finally comes to Greece

A Google car is presented to the media in Athens on Thursday. Google has launched its Street View map service in Greece after winning approval from the privacy authority that blocked the ground-level map application five years ago. Company officials said the service went live after "extensive and detailed" negotiations with the country's Data Protection Authority, which last year lifted objections made to the project in 2009. Culture Minister Panos Panagiotopoulos attended a launch event in Athens and said the map service would help the crisis-hit country's vital tourism industry, describing Greece as an "endless archaeological park." Barnes & Noble tries to find new niche for Nook

Barnes & Noble is teaming up with Samsung to develop Nook tablets, the book seller said Thursday, as it focuses on its Nook software.

Barnes & Noble spent years investing heavily in its Nook ebook reader and ebook library, but they struggled to be profitable.

The company has been trying to turn itself around as competition from online retailers toughens, and as consumers shift away from traditional books to digital formats. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

1 Eugenie Bouchard. Canada has fallen in love with this 20-year-old from Quebec, who lost a hard-fought battle in the French Open semis against Maria Sharapova — the second straight Grand Slam she's advanced this far. Bouchard is a social media darling with more than 500,000 fans on Facebook and 150,000 on Twitter, and even tweeted a picture of herself with Owen Wilson at Roland Garros. A star is born.

2 William Shatner. In an announcement made on YouTube, the iconic actor was named as parade marshal for this year's Calgary Stampede. Previous marshals have included Chris Hadfield and Rick Hansen. The Stampede takes place July 4, and I'm hoping to find a teleportation machine to beam myself there so I can see Captain Kirk in person.

3 Movember. The Movember Foundation has launched the Canadian Men's Health and Wellbeing Innovation Challenge. This grassroots funding opportunity allows Canadians to submit innovative ideas regarding men's health — and help men take action with their health. Deadline is June 26. Go to movember.com for details.

4 Game of Thrones Finale Theatric. HBO Canada and Cineplex have teamed up to offer Game of Thrones fans quite the treat: In 29 select theatres across Ontario, Quebec and Atlantic Canada, fans can watch the Season 4 finale June 15 at 9 p.m. on the big screen with fellow diehards. There were a lot of OMGs when this news broke on social media.

5 Denim vs. Active Wear. According to new data, sales of jeans in Canada have been on a long-term decline, partly due to the popularity of activewear. Seems "active bottoms" haven't been this hot since '80s leg warmers. I'm going to start wearing leg warmers over Lululemon yoga pants while working out to Jennifer Beals dancing to Flashdance ... What a Feeling.

6 Malcolm Gladwell. The bestselling N.Y.C.-based author (Outliers, The Tipping Point), did an Ask Me Anything this week as part of Reddit's popular AMA series. Gladwell was full of compliments for Canada, the country where he was raised — in Elmira, Ont. — and received an Order of Canada, saying, "Canadians are the nicest people in the world. Hands down." Ah geez, thanks.

7 WestJet. They've done it again, with another viral video. In this tear-jerker, it shows an amazing early Father's Day gift they gave to a hard-working dad, Marc Grimard, from Saskatoon. They surprised Marc by flying him to Edmonton to visit his sick child, Joel, who has a congenital heart condition and is staying at a Ronald McDonald House there with his mother. Beautiful and touching vid.

8 #HatzOnCatz. The hashtag went viral after teen social media star Matthew Espinosa asked his fans to send him #HatzOnCatz photos for a contest. Soon enough, people from around the world were sending silly and cute cat-in-the-hat photos. Heck, I almost bought a kitty and Tilley hat just to be part of this. But my Maltese shih tzu, Roxy, nixed that. #HatzOnDogz, she says.

2,000+ attempt Guinness record for World Environment Day

More than 2,000 people, mostly students wearing their school uniforms, gathered in Nepal's capital on Thursday in a bid to set a world record for the largest collective tree-hugging event.

Parliament members, office workers and even Buddhist monks also took part in the attempt, joining the students at a park on the outskirts of Kathmandu.

"Tree hugger" is usually a pejorative term, but there's evidence that getting cosy with the woods is good for you.

- A study by Japanese researchers found that when people participated in Shinrin-yoku (Japanese for "forest bathing," or going on forest walks), they had significantly higher immune function responses afterwards.

Let's celebrate the glorious day that is Friday.

You're almost there, free of your desk, never-ending emails and the dreaded copy machine. The world — or weekend — is your oyster. Head to the beach! Run around, get sand stuck in your paws and let your tail wag.

Wait, that's just this dog.

Well, take a cue from Ellie the Great Dane anyway, and let loose! Feel the wind in your fur, or rather, hair.

Future flick Edge of Tomorrow puts time on Cruise control

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Emily Blunt and Tom Cruise star in the time-travelling sci-fi thriller Edge of Tomorrow. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Set at the height of a worldwide battle between the human race and seemingly indestructible aliens called Mimics, Tom Cruise plays William Cage, a marketing genius whose ads have inspired millions of people to enlist by telling them the story of hero Rita (Emily Blunt), a legendary warrior with more Mimic notches on her belt than the rest of the army combined. When pressed into combat, something strange happens. Cage gets caught in a time loop, reliving the same day over and over. Eventually he'll learn enough to beat this unbeatable foe. Trouble is, he has to die every day...

Clever and entertaining. But unlike his character, Cruise's latest film doesn't have the ability to re-do its more lacklustre moments

Richard: Mark, two thirds of Edge of Tomorrow is as un-Cruise-like a movie as Tom has ever made. The Groundhog Day been-there, done-that section of the film is inventive, often played for laughs and presents Cruise in a way we've rarely ever seen him — as a coward. It's a refreshing twist for him and gives him a chance to exercise his rarely used comedic chops. You know he's going to turn heroic sooner or later, but it's a blast to see him do something just outside his usual wheelhouse.

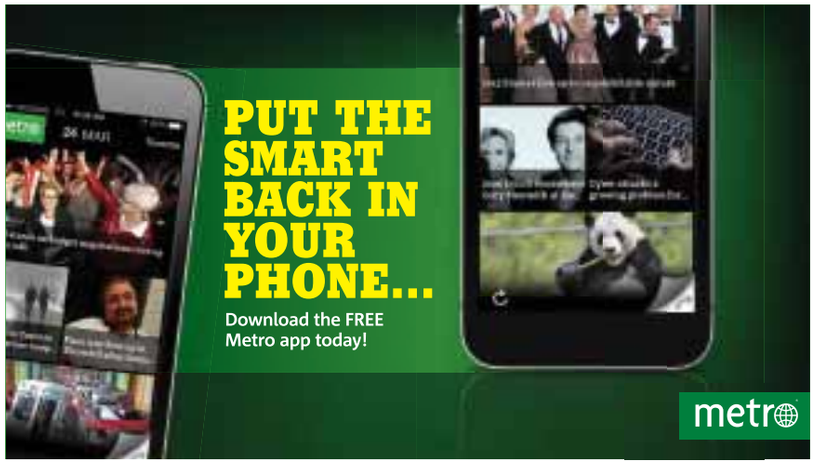
Mark: Richard, I enjoyed his cowardly weasel schtick as much as you. I didn't find the Groundhog Day type plot as inventive, though — it's been done in other movies like Source Code and About Time, but the mashup with Starship Troopers was different. The problem I had was that the necessary repetitiveness became inevitably boring after a while, and I felt like I was watching someone slowly get very good at a violent video game.

RC: It does rely a bit too heavily on video game-style violence at the end, but I have to disagree with you on the repetitiveness of the time loop. I thought director Doug Liman figured out clever and entertaining ways to show the same thing over and over, keeping it exciting with interesting editing and changing perspectives. The first two reels are packed with energy and invention. It's only when the conventions that made the story enticing are put aside in the last reel that the movie becomes a standard Cruise action flick. A good Cruise action flick but still more standard than the promising first hour.

MB: Cruise has been in some dogs lately, but this isn't one of them. And normally I would have dismissed the last third as too conventional, but at least it's the only part of the movie that puts Cruise and the viewer on the same level — neither knows what's going to happen next. I just found the time-loop a bit boring, which I also felt in Groundhog Day. I'm in the minority here, Richard, and I know it. What did you think of Emily Blunt?

RC: I'm a fan, but this is something different for her, and for action movies in general. Big budget blockbusters don't usually make room for female characters unless they are sidekicks or girlfriends. Here Blunt avoids being objectified and is as strong, if not stronger than Cruise.

MB: I also liked Bill Paxton. Even liked watching him do the same dialogue again and again, but with a growing sense of befuddlement and disassociation as the scenes progress.



Ayoade on The Double and why twice is nice

Take two. The Double director delves into Dostoyevsky and the duality of an office drone's dreary days

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Richard Ayoade CONTRIBUTED

Director Richard Ayoade follows up his acerbic teen indie debut Submarine with something completely different: The clever, inventive and highly stylized The Double, starring a pair of Jesse Eisenbergs and Mia Wasikowska as the object of their affection in a story based on Fyodor Dostoyevsky's novel. And that's not the only highbrow influence involved.

Friends keep asking me if The Double is anything like Submarine, but it's quite different, isn't it?

With Submarine, the idea of how it was filmed came from what it was about, really, and with this it would be someone who would imagine themselves in a certain esthetic. This [character] felt like someone needed to exist in a certain environment to feel this, and that environment should represent their feelings more. You know that painter Giorgio de Chirico? He was a symbolist painter and created these odd landscapes that came more out of dreams and nightmares. More that kind of a world, where you have something that's impossible but creates an emotion, like having a building that looks like it's night but with sunlight around it it creates a feeling that could not exist realistically or represent something in reality.

How was it directing two distinct Jesse Eisenberg performances?

Really, as silly as it sounds, it just takes longer because you have to rehearse everything twice. So you rehearse as one character once then rehearse as the other character, but probably as a result you go through the scenes much more carefully than you ordinarily would. And the other thing that's tricky is you never see it. You will never simultaneously see them together in a rehearsal. The rehearsal process was more similar to the feeling you have with shooting where you go, "That seems good, and when that's put together with this, it will be good, but I haven't seen it together yet." But he's very brilliant and intelligent and very thorough and he has that ability that actors who do plays have to repeat things without them becoming rote.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Cox, 49, lives up to… er… in Cougar Town

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

Courteney Cox really does inhabit Cougar Town: The former Friend, 49, is reportedly set to marry Snow Patrol guitarist Johnny McDaid, who's 12 years her junior.

Though the two have been dating for less than a year, things have been going so well that they're discussing getting engaged, insiders say.

"Johnny loves her daughter Coco, and he wants to marry Courteney. They have discussed getting engaged and everyone thinks it is going to happen," a source tells Page Six.

Coco is Cox's 10-year-old daughter with her first husband David Arquette. They were married for 14 years, divorcing in 2013 after a long and rocky separation. Cox and McDaid met through Cox's close friend Jennifer Aniston, who apparently approves of the relationship. "All of Courteney's friends love Johnny, which is great because Jen wasn't so fond of David Arquette," the source says.

Ha! Poor, poor David Arquette. I'm glad Jennifer Aniston isn't best friends with my boyfriend. I feel certain I wouldn't pass muster. I can't even play guitar.

Dr. Dre buys $40M pad

If Dr. Dre is looking to downplay reports that he's basically a billionaire now, his latest real estate purchase isn't helping.

The rap mogul has reportedly closed on the $40 million mega-mansion in Brentwood, Calif., previously owned by Gisele Bundchen and Tom Brady, according to E! News. "He's about to close on the house (that he) and his wife, Nicole, purchased," a source says. The 18,700 square-foot estate sits on four acres and has five bedrooms and nine bathrooms, plus a home gym, solar panels and a chicken coop. As for his wealth, Forbes recently listed Dre as the wealthiest hip-hop artist of 2014, with a net worth of $550 million. But the recent sale of the Beats Electronics business — which he co-founded — to Apple could push him past the billion mark.

Justin Bieber

Racist vids haunt Biebs

Justin Bieber's past keeps coming back to haunt him, as yet another video has surfaced showing the then-14-year-old singer parodying his One Less Lonely Girl hit by using a racist slur instead, according to the Sun.

Sources say his team has known about the video for years but refused to pay the $500,000 demanded by whoever ended up leaking it.

As is becoming his custom, Bieber was quick to apologize, the second time he's done so for a racist video from his past in less than a week. "Facing my mistakes from years ago has been one of the hardest things I've ever dealt with," he says in the new statement.

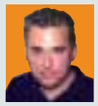
Beer born in Ontario



LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Back in the '80s, Bob and Doug McKenzie turned our appreciation of a cold brew into something as iconically Canadian as playing street hockey or sewing a maple leaf on your backpack.

In this age of innovative craft beer, two other Canucks have taken our liquid history a little more seriously. Alan McLeod and Jordan St. John's new book Ontario Beer: A Heady History of Brewing from the Great Lakes to the Hudson Bay (The History Press, $21.99) is a lovingly researched look back at the life and times of Ontario's vibrant brewing culture.

Finding a beer from that province with national distribution, not made by a big-time brewery, can be tough. While Creemore Springs' Premium Lager (473 ml, $2.85 - $3.99) may be part of the Molson family, it's kept its regional personality with a shot of malt and light hops. It's well-rounded and session worthy (meaning you can enjoy a few in one sitting).

It's a great barbecue beer, meeting sweet and savoury flavours somewhere right in the middle.

When in doubt, wrap your app in prosciutto

Baked Prosciutto-Wrapped Jalapeno Poppers. There is a simple way to slim down these traditionally fat-laden bites

This recipe serves six. MATTHEW MEAD/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Standard jalapeno poppers are thumb-sized hot peppers stuffed with cream cheese and cheddar cheese, then breaded and deep-fried. Yummy, but most home cooks aren't too excited for the mess of deep-frying. That's why there also is a baked version — half a jalapeno stuffed with cheese and wrapped in bacon.

Both types are delicious, but neither is all that healthy. So this version delivers gratification without overdoing it.

From a culinary point of view, jalapeno poppers make complete sense. Nothing tames a chili's heat like dairy.

That's why so many cultures serve their fiery entrées with dairy as a side dish. Mexicans team up spicy tortillas with crema. Indians serve hot curries with yogurt-based raita. And that's why cheese is right at home in a jalapeno popper. But it doesn't have to be high-fat cheese. The fresh goat cheese in this recipe delivers the required creaminess, while a modest amount of Parmigiano-Reggiano delivers the required flavour.

Brighten up the filling with scallions and lemon zest, then wrap the stuffed jalapeno in prosciutto. Though it has a lot less fat than bacon, prosciutto boasts big pork flavour. And when it's baked, as it is here, it's nice and crispy, which eliminates the need to coat the pepper with bread crumbs.

Ingredients

- 4 oz fresh goat cheese
- 1 oz grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese
- 1/4 cup finely chopped scallion greens
- 2 tsp grated lemon zest
- 6 jalapeno peppers
- 3 oz (12 slices) prosciutto

1. Heat the oven to 450 F. Line a rimmed baking sheet with foil, then coat it with cooking spray.

2. In a medium bowl, combine the goat cheese, Parmigiano-Reggiano, scallion greens and lemon zest. Halve the jalapenos lengthwise and carefully remove the ribs and seeds (wear rubber gloves if necessary to protect your hands). Stuff each half with the cheese mixture, being sure to use all of the cheese mixture.

3. Wrap 1 slice of prosciutto around each stuffed jalapeno half, overlapping the ends of the prosciutto on the bottom of the jalapeno. Arrange the poppers on the prepared baking sheet, then bake on the oven's centre rack until the prosciutto is slightly crispy, about 15 minutes.

Seafood, meet bacon

The stress of entertaining can get in the way of making the most of time with friends and family.

Try this delicious and easy recipe for grilling bacon-wrapped sea scallops from world-renowned chef, Stefan Czapalay.

Ingredients

- 1 package Clearwater Bacon Wrapped Sea Scallops
- 1 cup maple syrup
- 4 tsp rosemary (finely chopped)

1. Thaw Clearwater Bacon Wrapped Sea Scallops in package for 15-20 minutes before cooking.

2. Preheat grill to medium-high heat.

3. Prepare sauce by combining maple syrup and finely chopped rosemary. Simmer for 2 minutes and let cool.

4. Fold a 25-inch piece of foil in half. Spray one side with cooking spray.

5. Place foil on grill greased side up and place scallops on foil (do not crowd.)

6. Grill, lid down for 12-15 minutes, turning frequently, or until bacon is crisp and scallops are cooked.

7. During the last 30 seconds, brush liberally with maple rosemary glaze. Let stand for a few minutes before serving.

Shomari hoping to show his worth

CFL. Defender hoping to find a home with Riders after knee injury

The knee injury that forced Shomari Williams to watch last year's Grey Cup is delaying his official return to the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Saskatchewan selected Williams first overall in the 2010 draft and he spent three seasons there before signing as a free agent with Hamilton in February 2013. However, the six-foot-one, 232-pound Toronto native played just six games with the Ticats before suffering a season-ending knee injury.

In February, Hamilton dealt Williams, punter Josh Bartel and the eighth pick in the 2014 draft to Saskatchewan for the ninth and 11th overall selections. Williams reported for the start of training camp Sunday but isn't practising as he continues to rehab his knee.

"It's coming along. I'm just trying to get the strength in both knees as close as possible," he said. "I feel I'm good to go and the coaches feel I'm good to go so it's all good, we're just taking it easy."

Missing time in training camp with a new team can be catastrophic for a CFL player. Fortunately for Williams, 29, he's in very familiar surroundings.

"I was definitely a little shocked (by the trade) but I've learned over the course of my career to always expect the unexpected," Williams said. "But if you're going to be traded, it's good to go to a team you have familiarity with, the coaching staff and players.

"I think it's kind of a perfect fit that way."

Well, kind of.

While Williams is back with his original team, he's one of the few returning veterans not sporting a specific gaudy piece of jewelry. Last week, members of the 2013 Riders received their stunning 10-karat white gold, 122-diamond Grey Cup rings celebrating Saskatchewan's 45-23 victory over Hamilton in November at Mosaic Stadium.

"Yeah, I am pretty envious but what can you do," Williams said. "All I can do is try to win one this year."

Williams came close to earning a Grey Cup with Saskatchewan in 2010, dressing as a rookie for the club's 21-18 loss to Montreal.

Williams, who helped Queen's win the '09 Vanier Cup, registered 88 tackles and five sacks along with 32 special-teams tackles in his first go-around in Saskatchewan. He's also a versatile performer, capable of playing defensive end, inside or outside middle linebacker. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jays take big right-hander with 1st pick

The Toronto Blue Jays looked to improve their battery at Major League Baseball's first-year amateur draft, selecting pitcher Jeff Hoffman ninth overall and catcher Max Pentecost 11th overall.

Hoffman is a six-foot-four right-hander who went undrafted out of high school.

The 21-year-old played for East Carolina University with a 3.26 earned-run average but had Tommy John surgery on May 14.

Pentecost is a six-foot-two, 191-pounder who has hit .342 through three seasons at Kennesaw University.

Bouchard bows out of French Open

Canada's Eugenie Bouchard played like someone who belonged in the final four of a Grand Slam on Thursday.

She gave Maria Sharapova a stiff challenge at the French Open before the Russian veteran pulled away late for a 4-6, 7-5, 6-2 victory, derailing Bouchard's attempt to become the first Canadian to reach a major singles final in the Open era.

As painful as the defeat was for the 20-year-old from Westmount, Que., it will go down as another valuable learning experience on the heels of her first Grand Slam semifinal appearance at this year's Australian Open.

A look of dejection was etched on her face as she left the court after the nearly two-and-a-half-hour-long match.

"She was actually very, very disappointed," Canadian Fed Cup team captain Sylvain Bruneau said on a conference call.

Kings draw first blood from Rangers

Justin Williams scored the game-winning goal in overtime for the Kings in Game 1 of the Stanley Cup final on Wednesday night in Los Angeles. BRUCE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES

Stanley Cup final.

Epic N.Y./L.A. battle is only beginning after Game 1 thriller

The Los Angeles Kings are a mountain to climb, and the size of the challenge comes home the closer you get.

The New York Rangers finally had a first-hand look in Game 1 of the Stanley Cup final, mounting an early assault before Los Angeles knocked them back to win 3-2 in overtime.

Asked to compare the physicality of the well-drilled Kings to the three teams the Rangers have beaten in the playoffs to date, New York coach Alain Vigneault neatly summed up the challenge before the Blueshirts.

"Philly was a physical team and they played on the edge," he said. "Pittsburgh played more of a skill game, but they also had quite a few players that played on the edge. Montreal was a real structured team. So they were three different opponents.

"This one here is structured. They've got skill. They're physical. So makes it a pretty big challenge."

You can add battle-hardened to that list.

In the dog-eat-dog Western Conference, the Kings have come to the final the long way. They have had to run the gauntlet of San Jose, Anaheim and Chicago — teams that finished 15, 20 and 11 points, respectively, ahead of New York in the regular season. And they did it without home-ice advantage.

"We're a team that's just never going to go away," said Los Angeles forward Kyle Clifford. "Doesn't matter what the score is, we're going to play our hardest and do what we do best."

The Kings, who clawed back to dominate the second half of Wednesday's game, have already given the Rangers plenty to chew on.

The New Yorkers, nestled in a five-star cubbyhole on the beach, had the day off Thursday to ponder the challenge.

That comes Saturday, and Vigneault wasted little time challenging his players to up their game this time.

"One thing is real evident to me, and it should be to our whole group, is we're not going to beat this team if we do not all bring our A game," Vigneault said. "It is that strong of an opponent that we're playing against.

'Full steam ahead.' Rival Mercedes teammates make public peace

Teammates Lewis Hamilton and Nico Rosberg have settled their dispute.

The Mercedes AMG teammates, who have won all six races to start the Formula One season, had dinner and a long chat and decided to stop exchanging barbs as they battle each other for the championship.

Hamilton wrote in a recent tweet that "we're cool, still friends." He made it official at the pre-race drivers' news conference on Thursday.

"Now, full steam ahead," Hamilton said at the Canadian Grand Prix in Montreal. "We had dinner with the team (Wednesday) and things have never been better.

"People have ups and downs, so it's no different from any other experience me and Nico have had in our whole, who knows how many years we've been racing together. We move on. We're pushing forward. There's a long way to go in the season, so I'm looking forward to that battle."

Their sniping came to a head two weeks ago at the Monaco Grand Prix, where Hamilton felt he was cheated out of a chance to win pole position when Rosberg pulled off the track late in qualifying, bringing out a caution flag. Hamilton refused to join Rosberg on the post-race podium to celebrate the German-Finnish driver's victory.

Rosberg admits it is more difficult to race against a teammate because if they bump, it could take points away not only from the drivers but from the team.

N.Y. Islanders looking to Boyle

The New York Islanders acquired the negotiating rights to potential free agent defenceman Dan Boyle from the San Jose Sharks for a conditional pick in next year's draft.

The 37-year-old Boyle can become an unrestricted free agent on July 1. The Sharks will receive a fifth-round pick from New York, but that will bump up to a fourth-round selection if Boyle signs with the Islanders before next season.

Boyle earned just under $7 million with the Sharks this season. He led the club's defencemen with 36 points and 12 goals in 75 games.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You won't take kindly to others telling you what to do. Anyone who thinks they can order you around is going to find that you are in no mood to take it. There should be only one person calling the shots now — you.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You will get the chance to move up in the world today but act quickly. Uranus, planet of the unexpected, will bring sudden upheavals. Though they may seem a bit frightening, they'll work in your favour.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Today's Sun-Uranus link will give you remarkable ideas but it is what you do with them that matters. Dreams are fun, but are they the sort that can be turned into realities?

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
This is unlikely to be an easy day but it can be profitable. If someone in a position of authority challenges you to do better you must take up that challenge, no matter how unfair it appears to be.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will receive some criticism today but don't overreact. That may make matters worse. Is there some truth in what they are saying about you? Maybe you should listen and learn.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You will have to fight for your rights today. If you don't and let others eat away at your privileges, you may have none left by the time of the full moon on the 13th.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The slightest thing is likely to set you off but getting angry is actually the best thing you could do. It will remind others you aren't the sort who can be taken for granted.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You may find it hard to admit you were wrong about something but you have no choice. If you have been found out for playing fast with the truth, admit it and promise not to let it happen again.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You should be making progress now and if you are not it can only be a matter of time. Make an effort to move up in the world and make sure others can see you're going places.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Your views may be out of the ordinary, but no way should you change them. According to the planets they are closer to the truth than you realize, so keep searching.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Seek out those who are different and don't be afraid to show them you're different too. With Uranus, your ruler, on excellent terms with the Sun anything out of the ordinary will work in your favour.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Be more adventurous when it comes to your finances. What worked in the past may not work as well now, so look ahead and find new ways to boost your earning power and bank balance. SALLY BROMPTON
